

During the International Research Infrastructures Conference (ICRI 2012), which takes place between 21-23 March in Copenhagen, Denmark, a Manifesto entitled The New Global Data Generation: Simplifying and Guaranteeing Access and Sharing in e-Science Scenarios will be presented. The Manifesto, supported by 9 research infrastructures including DARIAH, urges policy makers to facilitate agreement, harmonisation and investment in:

- shared funding models for trans-national access
- simplified licences to facilitate access by researchers to data
- access and identify management at national and pan-European levels.
