

On 26 - 29 June 2013, the First Digital Humanities Summer School Switzerland, organised by infoclio.ch

, will take place in Bern

. Registration for the first edition of the Digital Humanities Summer School Switzerland is now open! The DH Summer school is organised in three types of modules: courses, workshops, and unconference. In addition, there will be a participant project slam, a social evening and an optional excursion. Each course is 90 minutes long and is completed by a hands-on training workshop or tutorial of 90 min. Course Lecturers are senior scholars of their respective domain. In addition to the plenary courses, the Summer School offers a selection of 90 min. workshops on various DH topics and tools. Those workshop will take place in parallel sessions.

Please visit the event website for further information. Registration deadline in 15 April 2013